I went to high school with Dawnette...instead of gym, we had jazz dance...She was the good one in our crowd....we couldn't even talk her into skipping just one class with us...we all still had a lot of good times back then. Then I moved out here to del Paso heights about nine years ago, and the first day out here, I ran into Dawnette by the thrift store. She still looked the same...and was still just as compassionate as in high school...much love and prayers to her family...
